SCORES OF FLOATS AND AUTOS ENTERED FOR THE BIG PARADE

EXPECTED THAT 200 FLOATS AND AUTOS WILL BE IN MONDAY AFTERNOON PARADE

Commercial Club Urges That These Making Entries Decorate Floats And Autos Attractively

Merchants of the city are entering floats and autos in the big civic, industrial and fraternal parade that is to be staged next Monday afternoon as one of the features of the July 4th celebration and it is now assured that possibly 200 vehicles of various descriptions will be entered and that the parade will be a great success.

Secretary Faris urges that those who have not yet entered either floats or autos to notify the Commercial Club at once of their intentions in this respect and not wait for the committee to make the call. The Commercial Club hopes that a friendly rivalry will spring up between the many entrants and that a real effort will be made in each instance to make entries of truly decorated outfit that will reflect credit on the city.

A Complete List

A complete list of those who had up to last night signed to enter floats or autos follows:

OLD BURIAL PARK WITHIN THE CITY TO BE IMPROVED

COUNCIL WILL APPOINT SIXTON FOR THE OLD BAYVIEW BURIAL PARK

Remains of Heroes of Mexican and Civil Wars are Buried in the Park—Property Belongs to City

Although suffering from ten injuries any one of which, according to attending physicians, would constitute a wound of serious nature, Mrs. E. A. Terrall, who was struck down and dragged approximately fifty feet by a motor car yesterday morning on Leopard street, has an even chance for recovery. Unless the injury in the back portion of the head proves to be more serious than the skull fracture may be expected, provided other complications do not arise.

The Old Bayview Cemetery, located within a stone's throw of the Bay and Lake depots, is the final resting place for veterans of the blue and the grey, as well as of many pioneer Corpus Christians, will be reclaimed from its present state of comparative neglect and in the future maintained in a more presentable shape.

Such a decision was reached yesterday when the property was viewed by a committee composed of Mayor Miller and Commissioners Sutherland and Gallagher, representing the city council and fifteen members of the Bayview Cemetery Association and local chapter of Daughters of the Confederacy. The council will very likely appoint a caretaker for the property and when the funds are available the old fence will be removed and concrete walls will surround the block.

The cemetery was first used as a public burial ground in 1843 and under its grassy hillocks rests veterans of the Mexican Civil and Spanish Wars.

The women of Corpus Christi, realizing the obligation imposed upon the people of Corpus Christi in maintaining the grounds for a half century have attended faithfully to the trust.

At the conference occurring yesterday afternoon Mr. Mary A. Sutherland told of the sentiment that had prompted the women in their labor of love during these past years, saying:

"We meet you here on this sacred spot to ask first that you decide this property to be that of the city, this having been given to the city many years ago, and to remain forever as a public park. Near this spot are the sleepers of the only man who was killed in the battle of Corpus Christi, occurring during the Civil War and also is this burial ground lies the remains of Captain John L. Brown, of the Maryland Mounted Rifles, who was killed in a battle with the Indians in 1843.

The fortifications leave the graves of men from both sides of the northern front. They represent the ladies of many of the Confederate soldiers who died while in duty and of others whom the king of Death called after the struggle between the states had ended and the people had returned to their peaceful pursuits. Many of the graves are old but we daughers of the Confederacy are not unforgetful of the duty imposed."

A peculiar feature of the cemetery was that a diamond set ring on the arm of a boxer which was terribly mangled was not injured but the diamond remained in its setting. It was cut from the finger by the physician.

Mrs. Terrall is still unconscious and unconsciousness has not left her since she was hit by the car.

Dr. and Mrs. Arnold will entertain their house guests and some Corpus Christians friends in a dinner at the Hotel on Friday.

Their house guests are Mrs. W. B. Colling, Miss Margaret Collier, Miss Virginia Mandeville of Laredo, Texas; Miss Ruth Hendren of Mesquite, Texas; Miss May Pease, Mesquite, Oklahoma; Miss Nellie Morris, Dallas, Texas; Miss Myrtle Thornton of California; Corpus Christians guests are Miss Sophie Smith, Dr. Harry A. Hause and Mr. Richard Smith of Matagorda, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Albinus Photo of Corpus Christi; Miss Thornton, who is Mrs. Arnold's sister, will stay all summer. Miss Max Fennell will have her home tomorrow.

The prayer service at the First Presbyterian Church will be made of an unusual interest to a talk on the "Baptism of Indians in Mexico" by J. B. McCallum, now residing in this city and who spent many years in Mexico as a priest. The attention of visitors and friends is requested.

The statement that has been made that Judge W. H. Hudspeth will not preside over the special term of Nueces county district court set for next Tuesday, on account of his taking a vacation is incorrect. The July term of Hudspeth county court, lasting for four weeks, opens on next Tuesday and for that reason it will be necessary for a special judge to be named for the Nueces court. J. A. Grisham of Beaumont has been suggested for the place, as well as several attorneys of Corpus Christi.

Announcement was made yesterday that Sylvan Martin in "Little Mac" is a delightful comedy by Philip Hartmann in five acts, will be the attraction at the Auditorium next Sunday afternoon and night.

A called meeting of La Retama Club will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the library. The attendance of all members is urged.

The Barbers class of the Baptist church enjoyed a big day last night which was given complimentary by the Phillips class and several members of both classes enjoyed a very pleasant evening. Watermelons were had in abundance and every one present enjoyed themselves.

The Desert-Brother Company yesterday included the first car of California fruit consisting of cherries, plums, apricots and apples.
